

Budapest, Hungarian Home Service, Dec. 5, 1946

"Last week representatives of the Hungarian Red Cross visited the villages of the right bank of the Danube from Rajka to Esztergom and contacted Hungarian refugees and arranged with the local authorities for relief to be given them.

"This morning Mrs. Szakasits, the chief representative of the Red Cross, visited villages along the River Ipoly. The calling up for labor service of Hungarians in this province has just started and the Red Cross wants to receive with well established organization those fleeing from the other side of the Ipoly."